

Carnivore means “meat eater” and include all the species which have a meat diet whether through predation or scavenging. The best known and an African icon is the lion with its characteristic and impressive roar.

- predator
- prey
- scavenge
- roar

Most primates are adapted to a life in trees and are some of the most intelligent and social animals on Earth. Primates are divided into two groups: monkeys and apes. Apes are mostly larger and lack tails but this is not a precise classification as there are exceptions in both groups. Primates are omnivores, have a well-developed communication system and the use of tools have been documented.
